2023 Sponsorship Opportunities: The Cultural Landscape Foundation Race & Space Conversations

Race and Space Conversations are free, virtual moderated discussions between esteemed experts—including landscape architects, historians, kin-keepers, and public officials—reckoning with spatial inequities and reimagining our built and natural environment. For generations, our cultural landscapes have served as the setting for the origins, arrival, movement, and settlement of people in this country and the brutal consequences of the baseless assertion that one race is more entitled to space than others. These conversations will dig deep into topics (or throughlines) featured in TCLF's Landslide 2021: Race and Space. Tune into the live events, typically scheduled during the weekday lunch hour, or view recordings of previous Race and Space Conversations on TCLF's YouTube page. LA CES™ professional development hours may be available to attendees.

Since its inception in 1998, TCLF's educational and advocacy initiatives have focused on telling the stories of those who were unknown and unappreciated, and revealing the layers of cultural history embedded within our shared and diverse landscape legacy.

About Us

The Cultural Landscape Foundation (TCLF) is a Washington, D.C.-based non-profit founded in 1998 to connect people to places. TCLF educates and engages the public to make our shared landscape heritage more visible, identify its value, and empower its stewards. Through its website, publishing, lectures, and other events, TCLF broadens support and understanding for cultural landscapes. TCLF is also home to the Cornelia Hahn Oberlander International Landscape Architecture Prize.
